Top 7 Tips to Win the Lip Sync Battle

1. Memorize the lyrics: Duh, listening to the song while reading the lyrics is the best way to start. Then move on to singing the song without music, then practicing syncing to the song.
2. Memorize the non-lyrical parts: The little, nonverbal parts of the songs like humming, breathing, intonation, perfunctory grunts all add character to the lyrics and realism to the performance.
3. Practice in front of a mirror: This will get you more comfortable with the performance and allow you to see yourself as the audience will. Exaggerate all facial and mouth movements!
4. You're an actor on stage: Bring real emotion to the song. Lip syncing is acting, and as an actor put yourself in the shoes of the singer and the words of the song. COMMIT to the song! Exaggerate all facial and mouth movements!
5. Sync like you'd sing: Sync the words as if they are actually coming out of your mouth. You can't just mouth the words, act like your body would act if you were REALLY singing. Exaggerate all facial and mouth movements!
6. Own the stage: If you have stage presence and own the space, with body language, movement and high kicks, the focus will be off your lips and will take some of the pressure off of you to lip sync perfectly.
7. Use costumes and props.
